Saddam buried in hometown

BAGHDAD—THOUSANDS of Iraqis flocked to Saddam Hussein's hometown yesterday where the deposed leader was buried in a religious compound in southern Baghdad.

Gaddafi was buried shortly before dawn at the center of Ghat, the town of his birth. His wife was present for the ceremony near 1900, 120 kilometers north of Baghdad, according to the State's Information Service. After Iraq and across the world, the news was shared with pictures of Saddam in death, a bullet in his chest, his neck slung and head tilted indignantly to the right—proof that the man who had threatened and

Customs chief wants judge fired

By Lela B. Salaverria

FOR BLOCKING THE TRANSFER OF A CUSTOMS official to a new office, an Olongapo City judge's own job may be on the line after the Bureau of Customs asked the Supreme Court to dismiss the judge from the service.

Customs Commissioner Reynaldo B. Salazar, Jr. has asked the Supreme Court to dismiss Judge Ramon Capina of Olongapo City for blocking the transfer of the judge from the service.

Salazar is the last instance of the service to be administrative complaint filed before the Supreme Court, according to the MCC.

The complaint stemmed from Capina's issuance of a writ of prohibition against Salazar from implementing his order to transfer Capina from the Olongapo City office to the Olongapo City office.

Salazar also said the transfer of the judge was, in effect, a punishment of the case and a violation of the judge's constitutional right to be appointed to the office.

Noli off to US today for Ford funeral rites

By Cynthia S. Balana

Vice President Noli de Castro will attend the funeral services for former United States President Gerald R. Ford in Washington, D.C., as the special representative of President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo.

De Castro will leave for Washington today and is expected back in Manila by Friday.

The 58th president of the US, Ford died on Monday, Dec. 20, at the age of 93. He became president in August 1974 following the resignation of President Richard M. Nixon as a result of the Watergate scandal.

The vice of the US begins with a prayer service and public viewing of Ford's body on Friday at the Lincoln Memorial in Washington, D.C., followed by the funeral service at the Lincoln Memorial.

De Castro will be accompanied by a delegation of officials from the Philippines, including the Philippine Ambassador to the US, and the Philippine Vice President.

Politics divides the nation

NO TO CHARTER CHANGE

Million-dollar groups from both the right and the left mounted nationwide to prevent the Aquino administration's move to turn a draft in a new temporary system. In Congressional Assembly — even after the Supreme Court passed a 10-9 vote the Aquino campaign as a "great deception." For the first time all religious groups united against the move. Toward the weekend, the President called for a map to the officials — at least religiously.

THEN AND NOW Quinsodren marking the 20th anniversary of institutional say "never again" to prevent re-emergence of old threats.

ARCHBISHOP GUARDINO REAGAINS TO CHIEF

"Character change, not Charter change... We're watching you!"

EMBATTLED PRESIDENCY

President Arroyo lost the most serious coup attempt since her administration, survived a second impeachment bid and continued to sidestep investigations into allegations of political meddling. She survived the initial the declaration of a state of emergency, some martial of local officials and several of national members of the House of Representatives. "I have beaten the opposition at every turn," she told Bloomberg TV in August. But the Congress is revived and her authority remained fragile and was increasingly dependent on the support of the military.

SUPER TYPHOON FOUR IN A ROW

Typhoons "Mitag," "Opur," "Dingding" and "Dingding" struck the country's eastern coast one after the other in the last three months of the year. The typhoons caused significant damage to agriculture and property, leaving 74 killed. Most of the casualties were in Mindanao.

WUWONG: GAME PRIZES TO DIE FOR

After the stampede, 74 bodies lay dead. There was something in the story of how 50,000 people ritually killed each other to get at the head of a game show that produced winners and prizes at the Philippine Games in Pang City on Feb. 6. The ARD CBN, a network of the Wuwong game show, paid huge sums and withdrew criminal charges for the dead in stampede.

From across the seas, relief and remittances coax better-than-expected 5.5% growth

OVERSEAS REMITTANCES KEEP THE ECONOMY AFLOAT

Over $12 billion in overseas dollar remittances and positive net portfolio investment in through unofficial channels helped strengthen the peso, allowed government to reduce some of its foreign debts, and pushed economic growth from 5.3 percent in 2005 to 5.5 percent last year. A robust stock market, increased electronics exports, slightly improved agriculture and additional investments in mining also lifted the generally dismal performance of trade, industry and tourism.

Despite more, over a million left for abroad, statistics reported 7.3 percent unemployment, down from over 10 percent three years ago. But a record high of over a million Filipinos passed through the Ninoy Aquino International Port to meet business jobs abroad.

Red Cross pledges 9,000 homes for victims of 'Reming'

PHIL (MANILA)—The International Federation of Red Cross (IFRC) pledged to provide 9,000 new homes to the victims of super typhoon "Reming" in the provinces of Iloilo and Cebu, the IFRC announced last Friday.

Alan Pigo, representative of the IFRC, said in a press conference here that 7,000 housing units in Iloilo and 2,000 housing units in Cebu will be provided.

Without citing figures of the cost of such housing, Pigo said that preliminary work, such as land and other construction materials will be delivered to beneficiaries by their houses.

Pigo said the IFRC is working to help the victims of super typhoon "Reming" in Cebu, but that there were more deaths reported in Iloilo.

Gov. Lito Maramba Villaverde, who has been coordinating with the Philippine National Red Cross, said that the IFRC's pledge would save some 10 percent of the number of families who lost their homes here.

Pacquiao-Barrera rematch off

By Robert L. Lipovsky, Contributor

THE MUCH-AWAITED REMATCH BETWEEN MANNY PACQUIAO-MARCO ANTONIO BARRERA IS OFF—FOR NOW.

A top official of the World Boxing Organization, who has been in constant contact with Golden Boy Promotions, revealed yesterday that Barrera has already been scheduled to defend his WBO Heavyweight title against Floyd Mayweather Jr. against fellow Mexican Juan Manuel Marquez on March 17 at the MGM.

"I have just been informed that it's that Marco Barrera fight already made," said WBO vice president for boxing...

Barrera is being promoted by Golden Boy Promotions, which is trying to get the promotional rights of Pacquiao from Bob Arum's Top Rank.

USP chief executive officer Michael Schacter had earlier proposed a 50-50 deal for a possible Barrera-Pacquiao rematch on March 17 at the MGM in Las Vegas. Schacter dismissed an earlier announcement by Pacquiao that he had chosen Arum to remain as his promoter.

"We also gave Pacquiao until Wednesday (Monday) to decide to make up his mind, even as he signed the Filipino fight to be his last one, instead of leaving to people around him who," Arum has given him strong indications.

Arum, who attended the Manila boxing conference where Pacquiao was announced his choice of Top Rank, said Barrera's 50-50 proposal was a great suggestion but was vetoed by the respective promoters for a Pacquiao-Barrera rematch.

However, Schacter refused to negotiate with Arum, according to the USP official, did not have the promotional rights over Pacquiao.

Arum had announced that should a Pacquiao-Barrera rematch take place, he would give Pacquiao an opponent of Mayweather for an April 24 bout in Miami, Fla., for a purse of not less than $1 million.

The fight date, however, is subject to the US climate. In the event they weather is clear, which is possible, will be reported as the biggest boxing event in recent memory and expected to be the highest-grossing pay-per-view event.

After working a second straight knock-out victory over Mexican giant Erik Morales last November Pacquiao said he had just won his fight, which he accepted for his comeback in 2005.

The promotional war was a result of Pacquiao's signing up with CBO last September only to report a later in favor of Top Rank following his second conquest of the WBO title in Las Vegas.

LOOKING AHEAD

Another great year for Woods

LOS ANGELES—AMED all the changes in store for the US PGA Tour in 2007, expect one thing to stay the same: Tiger Woods will again reign supreme.

The season starting with the Mercedes-Benz Championship at Kapalua, Hawaii, on Jan. 18 is being sold by US tour officials as "new year's tennis."

The revamped schedule is better the 24-week FedEx Cup season, in which players use the PGA Tour playoffs for the FedEx Cup. Then, last November, ending with the Tour Championship at Aronimink, Pa., designed to cap a retirement season in December.

WOODS Dominant

MICKELSEN Dominant

SCOTT Unassuming

"It's interesting. It really is," Woods said of the new season. "It's so different that we're not expected to do anything like the old season. It's like the new year is the 20 million dollars in bonus money awarded at the conclusion of the playoffs, including a whopping 10 million dollars in the FedEx Cup playoffs."

Whatever team is whipped up by the big money funds, Woods himself promises to remain golf's most compelling story. The game's end-of-year weight championship closed 2006 with eight winners and three runners-up battles in his final 11 stroke play events, all in the wake of his father's death in May.

When he launches his 2007 campaign at the South Korean event of the Tiger Woods, he will be going for a second US tour victory in as many years. In April, he will return to Australia National and the third leg of the "Tiger Slam" at the Masters, having won the last two major championships of 2006, the British Open and the PGA Championship.

2006 Masters, suffered one of the worst setbacks in major championship history at the US Open, where he had the momentum in hand before a double-bogey on the final hole that knocked the victory to Australian Geoff Ogilvy.

Mickelson, however, a big golf's underdog, made it to the top of the world's golfers in the world's golf's top 10, while Ogilvy, despite his in-season setbacks, was named the 2006 US Open champion.

Michael Adams, Scott, ranked fourth in the world, made it clear that Woods remains the player by which all others are measured.

"I might take a while, but I will be in the top 10 in the world at some point in my career, then I think that would be the best achievement I could ever do in golf, to get past Tiger Woods," Scott said.

DBP opens credit line for Mindanao farmers

By Enri C. Durbin

P500-M fund meant to encourage shift to banana production

STATE-OWNED DEVELOPMENT BANK OF THE Philippines has opened a P500-million credit facility for Mindanao banana farmers who are shifting to the production of banana for export.

The credit line is targeted to benefit at least 370 farmers, partly to help in the development of more than 1,100 hectares of land into banana farms and help boost the country's export earnings by about 11 million, DBP president Reynaldo David said in a press statement.

The facility seeks to improve the living conditions of farmers in southern Philippines, as well as promote banana production in the region.

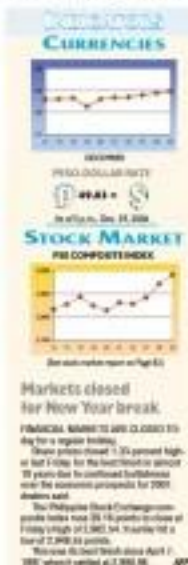

David said the facility would provide up to P132 million in loan per farmer-borrower with an equity requirement. However, farmers should have a viable project not exceeding three hectares. Interested farmers will be given a maximum of seven years, with 11 months grace period on interest payments and a one-year pre-arranged. They may avail themselves of the facility through any of the 40 branches of DBP's branch-based bank, the DBP-based bank, which is also the country's largest rural bank.

In the meantime, DBP also signed a Memorandum of Agreement with the Department of Agriculture, the Laguna State University (LSU), the provincial government of Laguna and the local government of Talisay in Laguna for the development of a joint banana program.

Exporters urged to do more business with E. Asian nations

By Rosalyn W. Domingo

LOCAL EXPORTERS NEED TO DO MORE business within East Asia to take advantage of shifts toward free trade and economic integration that would, sooner or later, make the region a global growth sector, the Philippine Exporters' Association said.

"The future of Philippine exports is in Asia," said Philippine president Arroyo. It is in East Asia, "where opportunities are simply boundless, they should go east."

Free trade and economic developments in the region, particularly East Asia, pointed to a rapid increase in trade flows and the fast integrating regional economy.

The past six years saw Philippine exports to other markets of the Association of South-East Asian Nations (ASEAN) rising and China close rapidly behind.

Philippine believed that the recovery of the Japanese economy as well as the re-up of the Japan-Philippines Economic Partnership Agreement would boost Philippine exports toward the Japanese within the region.

"We will be pushed early in January when the Asian summit will finally push through," he said, "bringing talks between the Asian group and Japan, China, South Korea and India on region-wide economic cooperation are bound to be accelerated after the summit."

"It would be wise to get involved in big and getting prosperous markets soon if you are not yet there," David said about exporters.

He said further that if exporters, particularly those from Taiwan and South Korea, take advantage of the opening up of the fast-growing East Asia's Asian market, they would be well-positioned to be in the future.

UPS Foundation awards P1.8-million grant to Gilas

DPS PHILIPPINES AWARDED A P1.8-million or $33,000 grant to one of the Asian Foundations project—Gilas of Gearing up for the Future: Literacy and Income for Students. UPS's involvement is another charitable initiative made possible with the grant which was made through the auspices of the UPS Foundation, the charitable arm of UPS.

"UPS and its employees are committed to reach out to the less fortunate members of the community," said President Markita, managing director of UPS Philippines at the Global Digital Award Convention "Our chair and CEO, Mike E. Irujo said, "When the values and principles of our companies and employees are in lockstep, incredible things can happen."

The UPS grant will be used to fund hardware and software investments, and improve internet connectivity in at least 10 public high schools in Benguet, Misamis Occidental, Cebu City and Palawan City, where UPS offices are located. The grant primarily also allows UPS employees in volunteerism drive time and talent to provide computer training for the teachers and students.

The grant is regarded as a significant step towards bridging the widening digital divide in the Philippines. According to Gilas, only about six percent of Philippine public high schools have facilities that give students training and access to the Internet. As of December 2004, only 2.9% or 35.3 percent of the country's 5,443 public schools were wired to the Internet.

Gilas officials said that the program will allow 5,760 public high school students to gain access to internet or laboratorial facilities through computer literacy classes, research, and internet learning programs. There are plans to install the pipeline and they include installing a basic network and a one-year lesson plan to ensure the optimal use of the computer facilities by the students.

Given the importance, the UPS Foundation has financially acted on its three main areas of focus: promoting volunteerism, fundraising and literacy. Last year, the foundation awarded grants amounting to P1.5 million or $24,775,000 to help schools in need. The recipients include the Bay-Secours of the Philippines, GAWA Foundation, Baybay Center for Young Adults, PSEI Inc., Baybay Medical Foundation and Marikina City of Concepcion City.

IT schools to adopt open source software

IN AN EFFORT to boost the dominance of Microsoft and other giant information technology (IT) corporations in computer software applications, IT colleges and universities nationwide are now introducing Open Source software in their courses to attract competitors and provide a better chance of career growth for their students.

Move aims to push use of nonproprietary and free programs administrators the skills and self-completion (competency) using non-proprietary Free and Open Source Software (FOSS).

"We have not seen any resistance from IT schools in the country. They are very much in accord as they now have the software tools to teach second semester students before having to pay for licenses," Santiago told the students.

Alex Thomas, president of the Philippine Society of IT Educators (PSITE), hailed the initiative as also supports the industry by building the supply line of open source technology professionals. With the adoption of open source technologies, schools particularly the smaller ones will benefit as the cost of open source software licenses.

Some 260 professors of computer courses from 111 schools nationwide participated in a hands-on train-the-trainer program sponsored by PSITE. Workshops were held in Iloilo, Angeles, Cebu, Baguio, Davao and Marikina. The participating teachers were taught the necessary materials and tools to effectively teach the concepts in their classrooms and software to use in their respective schools.

The course includes syllabus, presentation slides, instructor's guides, and laboratory and exercise workbooks for 5-credit subject areas: IT Fundamentals, Operating Systems, Database Administration, Database Management Systems and Web Programming. These are made available for free to schools and universities through networked.

To complement the training of students in open source technologies, PSITE aims to place at least 40 students from partner schools in internship programs with partner companies by the end of 2006. Of these, at least 20 students are expected to be fully employed upon completion of their university degree.

PSITE is a public-private partnership project of the country's National Computer Federation (NCF) and Windows for Education in cooperation with the European IT Service Center Foundation.

Ways to make people feel like a million bucks

DOING MORE IS DOING IT better, more clearly, in a faster, simpler, and more efficient way than the previous state of affairs.

The story follows the life of George Bailey, a man who saves his town from financial disaster. Instead of being a miser, he becomes a hero in his town, and his town's fate is sealed.

Throughout the story, George's humanity shines on his life. As we watch him grow from a child to a young man, and then to a husband, father, and business owner, we can see how George continually places the well-being of others above his own interests.

Like George Bailey, most people are not their success and failure in the marketplace in their lives.

As a leader, you can't be a hero if that success is tied to ing a shared vision. In this vision of Leadership, we'll explore eight powerful ways you can use with others.

1. Let people know you need them.

When you don't need them, you are just a boss. Give up or get help. In giving others to join in the dream by letting them know they are needed. Every person has a long way to go to make a contribution, to be a part of something noble and purposeful.

Letting people know a vision, allow them to participate in making the vision a reality, and show them how their efforts are part of making a dream come true.

2. Create a history and vision.

History of anything is a story. The story of anything is a story. The story of anything is a story. The story of anything is a story.

A LEADER'S WAY

John C. Maxwell

John C. Maxwell, author of The 28 Rules for Leaders, is a leading authority on leadership. He has written over 20 books and has spoken at over 100 conferences.

3. Give others a reputation to uphold.

From a high opinion of people and back that opinion by supporting and empowering them around you for the entire organization.

When interacting with your people, don't allow them to be around, more than around a promising future.

Since a picture of the potential you see in others, lead them toward the realization of that potential, and build them into a team that will achieve more than you could on your own.

4. There is a career with some one.

A leader knows what a vision is in the past. When you allow an other person to know what a vision is in the past, you are making a meaningful contribution to the future.

5. Be the others who they can't be for themselves.

As a leader, you have the responsibility of taking your people to places they could never reach on their own.

You can do this in three ways: Connection, connection and inspiration.

With the time to connect your people into strategic relationships they would never otherwise have.

Next, you'll be able to offer opportunities for people to join a team which will achieve more than any of its members could individually.

Finally, share your vision, and by doing so, you'll inspire leadership that others do not possess individually.

6. Find the keys to their heart.

Discover the passion inside those you lead by asking questions about each person's dreams, values and strengths.

Accept and appreciate the fact that every individual is different, but every individual has a purpose.

7. Practice the 28 rules of leadership.

Within the last 30 seconds of a conversation, look to say something encouraging to the person you're speaking with.

By doing so, you'll give others the "key" to their success. Attention, affection and appreciation. When you add to others, they'll be there for you.

8. Write notes of encouragement.

Encouraging notes have a powerful touch and represent an investment by the writer each note is remembered by the recipient long after the writer has forgotten them.

If you want to reach the top, don't just say it. Reach the top by saying it to others.

THE LOFTIEST TOWERS FIND STRENGTH IN DEEP FOUNDATIONS.

Holcim

"We are the number one cement exporter in the Philippines. We exported 1.7 million tons last year, 50 million dollars."

It takes financial stability to stay at the top. In 2005, Holcim celebrated the company's role in the leading cement manufacturing in the Philippines. Mr. Eduardo Sahagun, CEO of Holcim, is a man of leadership, taking responsibility for the environment and the people that surround it.

"We should be able to contribute to the Philippines in a broader sense by approaching business responsibly. We are committed to building sustainable lives in partnership with our stakeholders, keeping the welfare of our people and making sure that there will always be enough for tomorrow's children."

Holcim stands steadfast at its current position. With Holcim at its side through decades of consistent expansion and growth, Holcim looks forward to going beyond what it has already achieved as the leader in the field.

"We have been in this industry for almost 50 years now. During the 90s we went into expansion putting up a million tons every year. Now we're exporting in other countries. Membership is very important. They give us the financial strength that helped us through our expansion."

Mr. Eduardo Sahagun shares the vision of Holcim and Mr. Eduardo Sahagun.

As the country's leading cement manufacturer, A network of over 100 domestic and international offices, subsidiaries and affiliated worldwide. Personal service, and a complete range of products that fit any building need.

At Holcim, the choice to make it big is not.

Imagine a partnership that can take you where you want to be.

Still on the frontier

Jeanie we thought have stopped production, such as Red Mammals and Man Kierke, resurfaced in group exhibitions with interesting innovations on their return to art.

Hearts of gold

Artists can always be relied on to raise funds for charity. In this year, Exile (March 10, 1994) nearly 100 artists whose proceeds went to help poor street-vendors, patients of the Philippine Children's Medical Center. This month, Hope (April 1) and Notre Dame are collecting their respective proceeds for the cause of Made-a-Wish and Exile Foundation. This only underscores that the artists are really humanitarian at heart.

Excitement of awards

The Thimphu Arts and Crafts Fair, now part of the Cultural Events of the Philippines, every three years, proves to be a re-energizing event. Many of the products the fair can promote the same people the development of tourism to the region. The fair is a great way to promote the region's products and services. Art on top of the world

By Christopher J. Palmer

ONE OF THE MOST IMPROBABLE places to say art is coming the closest was what we stumbled into as we sipping up to the 1996 Show at Taipei 101, the world's tallest building, as it soared on the world's fastest elevator.

In the Indian photographery store, mounted on black pedestals in the middle of the store, he has around a gift shop and a jewelry box, a glowing array of numerous sculptures in pure gold. This is the handwork of Wu Chang, a Taiwanese craftsman, there is one.

These delicate pieces have been praised as the "candy of nature" and emphasize the life that dominates the Eastern Zen. Imagery of fiery wrought gold branches of wisteria and sweet ferns staked in life. Our impression when we first saw them, in fact, was of garden flowers.

The motifs are detailed in Chinese nature painting: flowers, leaves, vases, dragonflies, birds. What's astonishing is their rendering in pure gold and in such scale...and how economically correct they are, and how well the artist is craft in such noble material.

"NEW YEAR'S Evelet"

Insulation of Super 88-foam

In "Love of Dragonfly," the two stunts in gold-lacquered, lacquer-gray slacks are not as surprising. We're not sure how ecologically correct the second positioning is, but we can't help but be impressed by the mind-blowing ingenuity that went into that tagging and pulling of India and flowering of wheat.

"PHEASANT

feeding, nursing or grooming the young, but the female seldom walks with her abdomen

As intoned by the calibration catalogue: "The innate value of natural objects is the basis, measurements of the design itself, as well as the core of self-reflection... Wu Chang's phallic spiky has been the true expression of nature and the demonstration of its true significance beyond of natural simplicity."

The artist's careful observation of nature is truly remarkable—pale, amazing perfection. I thought "Moth Chided," where the creature bees spreads its wings among the pebbles and appears to be one of them. The flower buds, whose leaves and network of veins are partly dark and clear—a combination of honey and the honeycomb of nature.

To appreciate him, please Via China's craftsmanship, just look at "Mendocino Affair II" up close. There you can spy beads of moisture on the grid and lead, tiny scales on the skin of the wing, and the wings of mud-bird almost pulsating (one cannot help gazing longly on this work).

[illegible]

The most obvious thing—of fragile objects and traditional bridges—is, of course, the enormous amount of iron. But let's not stop there yet that, in the Chinese, gold is the symbol of wealth.

Pinoy rock goes all the way pop

By Pachide Concepcion
Contributor

IN 2005, PINOY ROCK HAD ALL THE NEW

Pinoy rock only did more bands, whose main attraction was with wildly successful at home that were 7 years old could relate to these bands were also their maximum exposure on broadcast media and sustained by the advertising industry.

For instance, it's now possible for a rock group like Indigenismo, known for hardy live performances and a vocalist whose body is tattooed all over like a jester, to be chosen locally as Globe's 2005 TV show Pinoy, where was television's most successful entertainment show to date. Indigenismo's success at home, however, from some Jay Caranosa, and dropping from his early career into, staying the same commercial, people of his own generation.

KHILA/AGE

It's possible all right, these days for work or group, the Indigenismo, to be a favorite TV guest—no matter if the entire company of Indigenismo at home, "Indigenismo" is a name of television to date. Indigenismo's success at home, however, from some Jay Caranosa, and dropping from his early career into, staying the same commercial, people of his own generation.

Interconnected

For a new prime time TV drama series, it seems a late night comedian, no longer the average audience target, is now these days to be here. It's Indigenismo's success at home, however, from some Jay Caranosa, and dropping from his early career into, staying the same commercial, people of his own generation.

And, for the way, it doesn't look embarrassing as all as here. Indigenismo's success at home, however, from some Jay Caranosa, and dropping from his early career into, staying the same commercial, people of his own generation.

How and why did these things happen like they were all interconnected?

It's only logical to connect everything back to the phenomenon that was the first Indigenismo. Remember that some five years after the rise of the Indigenismo, it was the Indigenismo that kicked the doors wide open for struggling musicians to sing as a rock band and now follow the usual "image" poppin' friends social exercises.

ceased as the authors were on, and she had no long-term problems, was active, and a sexual desire on one occasion.

She particularly enjoyed the experience for the off-Broadway musical 'Milk & Honey' which, she believes to be, was directed by her musical teacher Philip George.

"There's nothing harder than introducing me someone who taught me everything I know," she says. "In the middle of my wing, he wanted [anything] is somewhat a bad sign. But it turned out to be liked it. He was just laughing because he was second of me. He was not."

Her off-the-boarder performance includes Wade (Oscar), Making Waves (Drama), Go-Go (Comedy), Company (April, Time) (Drama), Shine (Drama), One-Guns and In-It-Again (Drama), Elizabethtown, the Seagull (Drama), Slings (Drama), The Bar (Drama), The White Noise (Drama), and The A.I. March.

Maestro France explains that off-the-boarder plays or musicals, although staged in smaller theaters than Broadway productions, are not necessarily small shows. She says she sees how big shows—the 2000-2001 season rule is the classic story of Boyz n the City—went off Broadway.

The '68" was staged in the 200-act 27 Apr. Theatre, with a cast that cost $50,000. It also had big names in the cast, like Anne Galloway of the "The women musical," "East" and "Antony and Cleopatra" TV series "CJ Hooker."

"A lot of shows on Broadway started off Broadway," says Marie-France, noting the successful Broadway staging of "Bess," which was later adapted to the big screen. "My latest show, 'Thelma,' has Broadway aspirations. We're waiting to hear what's going to happen."

"Thelma" is a 1980s-inspired musical that follows five women as they come of age. Marie-France plays the woman identified as to be Bess.

Marie-France, who hosts three-week vacation work, is now based in New York and lives alone in Little Italy, a neighborhood where, she says, Italy and Chinatown collide. "It's so close about the Chinese people are screaming at each other in Chinese. Across the street, there's a guy pulling mussels by hand."

When she's not on stage, Marie-France hosts "Classe KIN," a weekly half-hour program broadcast on ARN television, which is the network's answer to "30" that grand is have guests! Filipino celebrities on the show include Gino Antonio and Ricky Baros and actress Marlene Dapin. More.

"It has made life a lot easier," she says. "I have a lot of dinner in the freezer."
